ACCORD NEAR ON PLANS FOR WORLD PEACE

FRANCE JOINS FOUR BIG POWERS AT CONFERENCE

BY DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

San Francisco, May 4. (AP)—Statesmen of four big powers, now to be joined by France, struggled today with the question of whether a world charter should permit revision of peace treaties yet to come from this war.

Foreign ministers of nations sponsoring the United Nations conference — Stettinius of the United States, Eden of Britain, Soong of China and Molotov of Russia—side by side on easy chairs and a comfortable divan, offered France a position in their councils on a co-equal basis. France becomes almost, but not technically, one of the sponsors.

Already the big four, meeting with members of their delegations and advisers, in a penthouse atop the Fairmont hotel were reported nearing agreement on major changes they will endorse in the Dumbarton Oaks blueprint for a world organization intended to keep peace.

Polish Settlement Remote

Other conference delegates, assembled in eight committee meetings and sorting over a hefty sheaf of amendments proposed by all countries to Dumbarton Oaks, stirred with talk of a still remote Polish settlement.

An American proposal to permit revision of peace treaties, to allow for "peaceful change of conditions in the world so that the world is not frozen," has been questioned by Foreign Commissar Molotov of Russia. The British were described as trying for a compromise "but perhaps leaning a bit toward the American side."

One United States official said the differences were more over working than over basic issues.

Communique Causes Stir

Just before the midday session of the big four ended—another was set for tonight—a messenger hurried in with a copy of General Dwight D. Eisenhower's communique announcing surrender of Nazi forces in Holland, Denmark and northwestern Germany.

Stettinius read it excitedly. Eden, seated on one side of him, leaned toward him eagerly. Molotov, on the other side, was calm and solemn. Soong listened attentively from a nearby chair.

They weren't even gathered around a table.

Fresh reports that the Russians might be edging in the direction of meeting Anglo-American objections in an ever-recurring Polish issue shared attention with their deliberations.

Above all else, Molotov has insisted here on a seat for the Polish government in Warsaw. Thus far he has failed to get it, and chances appeared slim that he would succeed at any time in the near future.

For the British and Americans have declared adamantly that the Polish regime first must be reorganized to include more democratic elements, in accordance with a Roosevelt-Stalin-Churchill agreement at Yalta.

Cleavage Develops

Now Russia is said to have indicated a willingness to invite Stanislaw Mikolajczyk to take part in conversations in Moscow on broadening the Warsaw government. Former prime minister of the Poles exiled in London, Mikolajczyk is the type of person the

War Spending Program Cut In Washington

By The Associated Press

Washington, May 4 (AP) — With the war in Europe dwindling away the House of Representatives today made its first cut in six years in the war spending program.

But the cut, originally estimated by officials at more than $7,000,000,000, turned out to be $4,265,000,000, Chairman Cannon (D-Mo) of the House Appropriations Committee said.

That amount of "contract authorization" for shipbuilding was cancelled. An appropriation turnback of $3,100,000,000 also was involved but Cannon said the overall saving was not a total of the two amounts.

Cannon said that while the cut was "only the beginning" the war bill would not be halved as soon as Germany is definitely beaten. Northing will be done, he said, to interfere with the war against Japan.

Other Washington highlights:

The current draft rate of about 100,000 men a month is likely to continue in effect for some time after V-E day, according to information furnished by General George C. Marshall, to Chairman May (D-Ky) of the House Military Committee.

The government took over 33 more soft coal mines, putting 272 in its possession. Today's action was based on failure of miners to go back to work in the mines under terms of a new wage contract.

Harry Hopkins, still ailing, held a long conference with President Truman. He told reporters he is still a special assistant to the president but wanted no inferences drawn from that. He left any information about his future up to the president.

On the grounds that it would create a monopoly, Attorney General Biddle opposed proposals to limit United States' participation in international aviation to one air line.

If the Senate agrees with the House, the Federal Transportation Bill will go up about $20,000,000 a month.

The House today passed, 176 to 40, a bill to allow the railroads to charge the government full transportation rates. The government now gets cut rates in return for lands granted the railroads in pioneer days.

JAP OFFENSIVE FAILS IN CHINA

Drive Aimed At U. S. Air Base Halted; 3,000 Annihilated

BY SPENCER MOOSA

Chungking, May 4 (AP) — The Chinese high command announced tonight that Chinese troops aided by American-equipped air-borne reinforcements had completely halted a four-pronged Japanese offensive aimed at the U. S. air base at Chihkiang, 250 miles southeast of Chungking, annihilating 3,000 of the enemy.

Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure, chief of staff to the Allied commander in chief in China, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, also said that the enemy offensive "seemingly has bogged down," and that the Chinese were continuing their counter-drive in this part of western Hunan province.

Two additional villages were recaptured near the strategically important walled city of Wuyang, 67 miles southeast of Chihkiang. Wuyang was taken yesterday. Heavy fighting also continued east of Gungkow, 80 miles from the air base.

A spokesman conceded a setback in Hupeh province where the Japanese had succeeded in contacting the Japanese forces inside of Laohokow, former American air base city 350 miles northeast of Chungking. Apparently the Chinese have never been able to wipe out the Japanese pocket inside of Laohokow.

Hollanders Dance In Streets, Hang Flags Everywhere

Eindhoven, Holland, May 4 (AP)—The news of the capitulation of the German armies in Holland spread like wildfire today.

Civilians who had heard the news over the free Netherlands radio here stopped British Tommies in the streets to tell them, "the war is over."

Soon the streets were filled with dancing crowds and people hastily hung their flags from their houses.

There were scenes of the wildest enthusiasm in this city which has served as temporary capital of Holland.

NIPPON PILOTS SINK 5 LIGHT U. S. WARSHIPS

ATTACK COSTS 54 PLANES; OKINAWA TRICK FOILED

BY CLYDE BARTEL
(Associated Press War Editor)

A savage Japanese air and sea attack on U. S. ships off Okinawa yesterday sank five light American warships and damaged another small surface vessel, for which the Nipponese paid with 54 planes shot down and 15 tiny suicide boats destroyed.

American carrier planes struck furiously the same day at Japanese air units in the Amami Island group north of Okinawa, downing 96 enemy aircraft for a total of 150 accounted for during the day.

The Japanese used their new Baka bombs, 19-foot explosive glider craft released from bombers and controlled by suicide pilots. One of these was shot down.

Invaders Annihilated

There was virtually no change in the ground fighting on southern Okinawa, said Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz in a communique announcing the surge of Japanese air and sea activity. About 600 Nipponese using landing craft attempted to attack the rear of American lines, but were repulsed at one point and faced annihilation where landings were made.

Australian troops invading Tarakan island off the northeastern Borneo coast captured military barracks from the Japanese defenders of Tarakan city and seized the water supply installations, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.

Allied planes supporting the five-day old Tarakan operation hammered Japanese shipping and installations around the Borneo coast, sinking more than 15 deep water and river craft, including two 300-ton transports.

British and Indian troops completed the occupation of Rangoon, capital of Burma and Port city on the Bay of Bengal, finding no damage done to harbor installations by Japanese forces which evacuted the city April 25 after three years possession.

Victory In Burma

Allied headquarters said Japanese armies in Burma have been decisively beaten, leaving 97,000 dead on the battlefields. Only fragments of Nippon's once-powerful forces remain in the country, and the liberation campaign which started 15 months ago from India is "virtually over," the official announcement said.

Seizure of Rangoon gives the Allies a base for future operations, which may include an offensive to recapture Singapore, and also reopens the southern terminus of the old Burma road to send supplies to Chungking.

Chinese troops killed 3,000 Japanese and stopped the Nipponese four-pronged westward drive toward the U. S. air base at Chihkiang, in western Hunan province, the Chinese high command reported.

In the Philippines Americans 24th Division doughboys fought Japanese rearguards from house to house in battered Davao, west coast port on Mindanao island, and threw back Nipponese counter-attacks outside the city.

The navy announced the loss of the U. S. Submarine Swordfish, the 43rd American submarine and the 297th naval vessel lost since the start of the war.

Episcopalian Bishop Is Consecrated At Detroit Cathedral

Detroit, May 4 (AP)—After an impressive consecration ceremony at St. Paul's Cathedral here today, the Rt. Rev. Donald Bradshaw Aldrich assumed his new duties as bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan.

The new prelate, second bishop coadjutor elected in the history of the diocese, was for many years rector of the Church of the Ascension in New York City before becoming a Navy Chaplain. He automatically will succeed the Rt. Rev. Frank W. Creighton, Bishop of Michigan.

The most Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church, officiated at the solemn rites. Bishop Aldrich was presented for consecration by the Rt. Rev. Benjamin M. Washburn, Bishop of Newark, and the Rt. Rev. Herman Page, Bishop of Northern Michigan and formerly one of the executives of the army's school for chaplains at Harvard University. Bishop Page is the son of the late Bishop Herman Page, who for 16 years served as Fifth Bishop of the Diocese of Michigan.

BALTIC ESCAPE VESSELS SUNK

RAF Knocks Out 74 Nazi Ships Trying To Flee For Norway

BY DON DOANNE

London, May 4 (AP)—The largest RAF force ever hurled against enemy shipping knocked out at least 74 Nazi vessels fleeing toward Norway today in a blazing climax to a record week-long massacre in northern Germany and the Baltic Sea.

Rockets, bombs and cannon shells spread havoc for the second successive day among frantic Germans trying to escape from Baltic ports toward a possible last-ditch stand in Norway, where the enemy still was holding out after surrendering in northwestern Germany, Holland and Denmark.

All through the daylight hours, ships and land vehicles were hounded by Mosquito bombers, rocketfiring Beaufighters and Typhoons, Spitfires and Mustangs as the RAF coastal command and the fighter-bomber command joined the Second Tactical Air-force in the slaughter.

A preliminary count on the day's operations showed at least 13 ships sunk and 61 damaged despite bad weather and very heavy flak defenses put up by some ships.

In more favorable weather yesterday Allied planes sank at least 53 vessels and damaged nearly 100 others.

Smash Hirohito's Palace, Is Advice Of Carlos Romulo

San Francisco, May 4 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, resident commissioner of the Philippines, today urged that the Palace of Emperor Hirohito be bombed and "the Emperor and his white charger destroyed in the dust and debris."

This would be certain to begin the crack-up of Japanese civilian morale, Romulo told a news conference, adding:

"The Japanese soldier believes he is fighting for a deity—for the Son of God. As long as American bombs are not dropped on the palace in Tokyo, the soldier and the civilian of Japan continue to believe in the Emperor's divinity.

"If the Emperor is destroyed, the myth that holds up Japanese morale will have been destroyed. The Japanese then will realize that they have nothing to go on fighting for."

Mine Cavein Closes Section Of Highway South Of Negaunee

Lansing, May 4 (AP)—Highway M-35 south of Negaunee was closed today as a precautionary measure following a cave-in a few feet from the road bed at the Mary Charlotte mine. Traffic will be rerouted over country roads between M-28 and Palmer, five miles from Negaunee, until mining engineers can determine the damage, the state highway department said.

ALL SLOVAKIA IS LIBERATED BY RUSSIANS

DRIVE BEGUN WEST OF VIENNA TO JOIN YANKS

BY ROMNEY WHEELER

London, Saturday, May 5 (AP)—Russian troops, smashing out powerful 10-mile gains in the Nazis' Czechoslovakian mountain redoubt, liberated all Slovakia yesterday as German forces bitterly resisted Red army advances and staged a big tank battle near the Moravian war production city of Olmuetz (Olomouc).

Despite violent German opposition in which the Russians lost and then regained at least one town, Red army forces battled for a quick cleanup of Czechoslovakia while the Germans reported a new Soviet offensive was in progress in Austria.

The Nazi high command said that Soviet armor had opened a big drive west of Vienna toward a junction with American troops battling for Linz that would cut off the Austrian redoubt from Czechoslovakia. The enemy said Red army mountain fighters also were plunging toward Austria's second city, Graz.

Pockets Mopped Up

While the Red army pressed campaigns to reduce the Germans' southern European strongholds, mop-up operations continued against German forces in northern Europe.

More than 45,700 German troops laid down their arms and surrendered to the Red army northwest and southwest of Berlin and north of Stettin, a drive was opened to clear the Baltic islands guarding Stettin Bay.

Below the Danube, Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army was reported to have launched a powerful new blow westward from St. Poelten, where the Russians were 60 miles east of Linz. Tolbukin's troops also were said to be striking for Graz from points below Semmering Pass.

By German accounts, Prague also was threatened from the north. Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian army was reported attacking along the Elbe near Meissen, six miles northeast of the Saxon capital of Dresden. Konev's spearheads were 72 miles north of Prague, but they faced crossing the high Sudeten mountains.

In the north, meanwhile, Marshal Konstantin K. Rokassovsky's Scond White Russian army captured more than 22,000 additional German officers and men in Mecklenburg province as they mopped up pockets of enemy resistance between Russian and British Second army lines south of the Baltic.

Tremors And Blaze Blamed To Meteor In Atlantic States

Philadelphia, May 4 (AP)—Thousands of persons in the middle Atlantic states were awakened early today by heavy explosions and tremors which followed a blaze of light across the sky.

Scientists agreed the spectacle probable was caused by a meteor which exploded as it came in contact with the dense atmosphere which surrounds the earth, but no trace of one has been reported.

Various accounts said the light was from 30 to 50 miles long and from 20 to 50 feet wide. It was reported the object made a "swooshing" sound as it hurtled through space and that a thud was heard before a heavy explosion which was followed by three lighter blasts.

Dr. Roy K. Marshal, director of the Fels Planetarium at Franklin Institute, said the light probably was made by a "Bolide, the largest kind of meteor." He said they travel from five to 20 miles a second and sometimes are as large as 1,000 tons with a length and breadth of ten feet.

Air Corps Cuts Off Training Of Youths

London, May 4 (AP) — Lines formed at bakeries and tobacco shops tonight as home-bound Londoners stopped for emergency supplies in event of an overnight V-E Day announcement. Shops are to close on that day.

Germany Whipped, Says Eisenhower

By Robert Eunson

Paris, Saturday, May 5. (AP)—All enemy troops in Denmark, Holland and northwestern Germany surrendered unconditionally yesterday in the greatest mass capitulation since the armistice of 1918, and Gen. Eisenhower declared the enemy was beaten "on land, sea and in the air."

Only formal armission from Fuehrer Karl Doenitz that further fighting was useless was needed to bring peace to Europe five years and eight months after the dead or missing Hitler plunged the continent into the most terrible war in the history of mankind.

Wehrmacht Shrinks

A half million Germans in the north will surrender today, to Field Marshal Montgomery under terms of the capitulation order, and with the 500,000 captured on the British-Canadian front yesterday will account for one million men. This overshadows even the mass capitulation in northern Italy and western Austria Wednesday.

It was estimated that no more than 500,000 Germans remained to fight of an army that once made all Europe tremble. The German army at its peak strength numbered 8,000,000 men.

By these estimates there were 300,000 in Czechoslovakia and Austria, where the enemy was surrendering almost as fast as the Americans approached, 150,000 in isolated Norway, and 50,000 in the French ports and channel islands.

Associated Press Correspondent Daniel De Luce reported that negotiations were in progress for the surrender of both the Norway and Czechoslovak pockets, with Doenitz apparently delaying capituation to let as many troops as possible escape the Russian occupation zone.

From north to south, this was the story of the fall of the military machine with which Hitler set out to conquer Europe:

1. The Germans agreed yesterday to surrender at 8 a. m. today (2 a. m. Eastern War Time) all

JOYFUL DANES IN CELEBRATION

Citizens Of Copenhagen Break Loose; Home Troops Mobilize

BY LASSE LEMKOW

Copenhagen, Denmark, May 4 (AP) — The Danish people burst loose from the long, hard bonds of German occupation tonight with scenes never before equalled in Copenhagen's 800-year history.

The ordinarily temperate Danes swelled into the streets, shouting, singing, crying . . . and fighting.

In the midst of the celebration the Danish Freedom Council ordered mobilization of the whole resistance movement, on what was said to be a direct order from King Christian X.

This put under arms an estimated 300,000 men in the capital alone They seemed to be everywhere, carrying tommy guns, machine guns and pistols, mostly of British and American make, and wearing armbands in the Danish colors.

Some of the members of the resistance movement immediately attacked the police building, main seat of the feared Hipo (Danish Nazi Auxiliary Police Corps), the Gestapo headquarters in St. Anne palace, and the headquarters of German Ambassador Werner Best at Dagmarhus on the Raadshusplatsen, the capital's central square.

Most of the people seemed unmindful of this violence in the midst of their exultation at the return of freedom.

Church bells are ringing throughout the capital. Columns of people are marching, led by American, British and Danish flags.

The grim, dreadful silence of five years has been broken in a way that can be felt as well as heard.

Old and young, rich and poor streamed into the streets, bringing with them all they had in voice, laughter, flags and kisses.

Flier Listed Dead Found In Rangoon; Bride Remarried

Portsmouth, O., May 4 (AP)—Lieut. Harold W. Goad was found alive in a Rangoon hospital this week, six months after the war department had officially listed him as dead and four months after his bride had remarried in keeping with his parting counsel, his stepmother reported today.

Just before he left, Mrs. Goad said, he told his bride, Helen, "if anything should happen to me, go ahead and get married and be taken care of." He was a bomber pilot.

She was given the Air Medal and Distinguished Flying Cross awarded to him, supposedly posthumously, and married Ensign MacDowell last December.

Wurlitzer Acquires Orgatron Business

Chicago, May 4 (AP)—The Rudolph Wurlitzer Company of Chicago, manufacturer of musical instruments, today announced it had purchased the entire orgatron business of the Everett piano of South Haven, Mich.

Wurlitzer will begin full scale production of orgatrons (electric organs) at its North Tonawanda, N. Y., plant as soon as the government permits manufacture for civilian use. The New York plant was converted to wark in 1942.

BIG FIRE IN PONTIAC

Pontiac, Mich., May 4 (AP) — A $100,000 fire swept through the three-story Knights of Pythias building here today, firemen battling the blaze two hours before bringing it under control. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

AIR STRENGTH DECIDES FATE OF THE REICH

CAPTURED MARSHAL VON RUNDSTEDT IS INTERVIEWED

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER

With U. S. Seventh Army, May 4 (AP)—Field Marshal Karl Gerd Von Rundstedt, admitting complete German defeat, said today he regarded air power as the most decesive factor in the Reich's military failure.

Wearing his Marshal's uniform with the Knights Cross of the Iron Cross and other decorations, the former German commander in the west received correspondents in a Chateau where he is held prisoner.

Von Runstedt said these were the other factors in Germany's defeat, in order:

1. Lack of fuel, both oil and gasoline.
2. Destruction of the railway system.
3. Germany's loss of raw materials areas such as Romania.
4. Smashing of the home industrial sections such as Silesia and Saxony by air attacks.

Bowing stiffly to the correspondents, Von Rundstedt seated himself on a big sofa and replied to every question put.

He said in his opinion Hitler is dead, but not by suicide. He expressed belief the Fuehrer died in Berlin.

D-Day Was Surprise

Nervously puffing at an unlighted cigarette and in crisp Prussian tones, he then said:

1. American generals are surprisingly good, as is Marshal Montgomery of the British army. They have learned much since the first world war.
2—The D-Day invasion came as a surprise, both regarding the exact time and locality, although the locality had figured among German calculations.
3. Western Allied armies made as successful a war of movement on Germany as the Reich made on France in 1940.
4. The so-called Von Rundstedt counteroffensive in the Ardennes last December was ordered by Hitler with the field marshal the scapegoat. It was Germany's last and only chance to avert disaster. It would have succeeded if supplies and reserves could have been brought up as quickly as Gen. Patton could move up from the south.
5. Germany fights on solely because all utterances, both in the east and west, indicate that it is a fight for existence.
6. Germany would have won in 1940 except for British certainty that the United States would help.

HORROR STORIES NOT OVERDRAWN

Detroit Writer Tells Of Scenes At Buchenwald Atrocity Camp

New York, May 4 (AP)—Malcolm Bingay, editorial director of the Detroit Free Press, said tonight that stories of systematic starvation and torture in German concentration camps "have not been exaggerated."

Bingay and three other editors and publishers in a radio broadcast from Paris over the NBC network described what a party of American editors saw in German atrocity camps at Buchenwald and Dachau.

"At Buchenwald we saw conditions that made a nightmare seem like a pleasant dream," Bingay said. "The stories of systematic starvation and torture of the political prisoners have not been exaggerated. "Dachau was even worse than Buchenwald."

City Editor M. E. Walter of the Houston (Tex.) Chronicle said the condition of prisoners still in the camps "is enough to convince even the most skeptical that a policy of mass extermination was being followed," adding:

"At Buchenwald it was nearly two weeks since the camp was opened. Every effort had been made to save the inmates and yet they are still dying at a fast rate. The Americans have been in charge a few days and some 2,000 bodies are awaiting burial.

"Buchenwald and Dachau are two words that will live down for centuries in terms of infamy and degradation."

Molotov Declines California Degree

San Francisco, May 4 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov has refused to accept an honorary degree from the University of California.

He was on a list which included Secretary of State Stettinius, Foreign Ministers Anthon Eden of Britain, T. V. Soong, of China, Georges Bidault of France and Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts of South Africa.

Molotov told the university "it is not in accordance with the policies of the Soviet Union" to accept.

Germany Done, Is Assurance Of Eisenhower

northwestern Germany, Holland, Denmark, Helgoland and the Frisian Islands.

2. Gen. Eisenhower declared Germany was "thoroughly whipped" and called on all enemy troops holding out in Norway, Czechoslovakia, Austria, the channel islands and the French coastal pockets to surrender.

3. Germans in flight to Norway, possibly with their fuehrer, Admiral Doenitz, were under a terrible aerial scourge that sank or damaged 74 of their vessels.

4. The remnants of the German Ninth and 12th armies, beaten by the Russians, gave up to the U. S. Ninth army west of Berlin near Stendal.

5. The Bavarian-Austrian redoubt vanished, with the U. S. Seventh army seizing Hitler's Berchtesgaden, the bastion of Salzburg, and Innsbruck, key to communications in the Alps. Organized resistance virtually ceased on a 70-mile front and 50,000 prisoners were taken.

6. The Seventh army plowed on into Italy through the Brenner Pass, meeting the U. S. Fifth army's Italian veterans.

7. The U. S. Third army accepted surrender of an entire panzer division at the Czechoslovak border, then drove 10 miles or more unopposed inside, threatening to outflank the arsenals of Pilsen.

8. The Third army last was reported three miles from the stronghold of Linz, and the German communique said the Americans had entered that third largest city of Austria.

9. Pilots back from Czechoslovakia bombing missions said thousands of civilians were in flight from Prague, fleeing toward the American lines ahead of the Russians. Apparently they were German civilians.

Proud Reich Vanishes

Involved in the surrender of Denmark, Holland and northwest Germany were these forces under the overall command of Field Marshal Ernst Von Busch:

Col. Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz's armies in The Netherlands.

Col. Gen. Georg Lindeman's armies in Denmark.

Gen. Schlemm's First paratroop army.

A makeshift army under the command of Gen. Gunther Blumentritt.

The German 25th army.

Supreme headquarters discounted reports that Doenitz himself figured in the surrender, asserting that the capitulation was strictly a "battlefield surrender" and Doenitz now is considered head of Germany.

The abrupt capitulation of the Germans to Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's forces stilled the guns of Europe's northern battlefields for the first time since fateful Sept. 1, 1939.

(A CBS broadcast from the field said the surrender order was signed by Montgomery and Admiral Von Friedberg, commander-in-chief of the German navy, in a tent on Luneberg Heath just south of Hamburg.)

All the Reich that Hitler ruled when he came to power had vanished save for a tiny shread of Bavaria around fallen Berchtesgaden.

All the soldiers who on that September day struck at Poland to erect a Reich for 1,000 years were dead, captured or were backed into isolated Norway, the southern pocket, already cut in two, around Dresden and in surrounded French ports.

Effective at 2 A. M.

Gen. Eisenhower, who brought American armies across an ocean, rallied British, French, Poles, Dutch, Belgians in Britain, and invaded fortress Europe, announced the surrender order.

It became effective at 8 a. m., British Double Summer Time, (2 a. m., Eastern War Time) tomorrow.

Said Eisenhower's announcement:

"Field Marshal Montgomery has reported to the supreme Allied commander that all enemy forces in Holland, northwest Germany and Denmark, including Helgoland and the Frisian Islands, have surrendered to the 21st army group effective at 0800 tomorrow, B. D. S. T.

"This is a battlefield surrender involving forces now facing the 21st Army group on their northern and western flanks."

Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery had been negotiating with the German commander in Denmark since Thursday.

Montgomery's tanks had broken through the enemy's last positions in northern Germany. His soldiers had taken at least 500,000 prisoners.

While they negotiated, British tanks and troops drew up short of the Kiel canal to avoid unnecessary casualties, but the enemy in flight still was dying.

Big Armies Released

During the fighting lull, the Germans were trying to escape to Norway, and Allied warplanes in endless procession attacked their motley armada, sinking or damaging more than 100 of their ships.

The fall of the German armies in the north released the British Second, Canadian First and U. S. First and Ninth armies for the invasion of Norway or the attack on the broken enemy retreat in Austria and Czechoslovakia.

The surrender embraced many a symbol of Germany might, both military and economic.

There were the great naval base of Kiel, the rock of Helgoland which Kaiser Wilhelm fortified to defy the British in another generation, the Port of Bremerhaven from which ocean liners used to sail, and the U-boat nests of Emden and Wilhemshaven.

It ended five years of bondage and starvation for the greatest cities of Holland—Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Utrecht, and the Hague, where the nations once met to try to abolish wars.

Holland was invaded May 10, 1940, and Denmark, April 9 of the same year.

Collapse in the north was being followed quickly by collapse in the south.

Junction In Italy

The U. S. Seventh army broke clear through Brenner Pass into Italy after overrunning the key city of Innsbruck and joined forces with the U. S. Fifth army's veteran Italian campaigners 10 miles beyond the pass.

Salzburg, bastion standing at the entrance of the so-called southern redoubt, surrendered unconditionally to armored cavalry of the Seventh army.

The U. S. Third army—of all Eisenhower's armies the only one forced to fight its way forward—was but three miles from the Austrian fortress of Linz, northeast of the Redoubt.

It also smashed 10 miles into Czechoslovakia from the south, developing an outflanking threat against the arsenal city of Pilsen.

Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's U. S. Seventh army made a triumphant return to Italy, from whence it set out last August for the invasion of southern France.

Completing a triumphant 700-mile circuit of southern Europe, infantry in a 35-mile dash through the snow-crowned Alps reached Vipiteno, 10 miles southwest of Brenner Pass.

Swastika Hauled Down

There the 103rd Division of the Seventh Army met the 88th Division of the U. S. Fifth Army, which was sitting there waiting.

To make the junction, the 103rd had only to move through small groups of dazed Italian groups, who already had surrendered to the armies of the south.

The march began last night when the Americans rolled into Innsbruck, controlling east-west communications through the Austrian Alps.

In Innsbruck, the Austrians gave the Americans a tumultuous welcome. Entry into the city had been by brief dickering with civilians, who finally convinced 250 SS men to abandon plans to fight for the city.

The Nazi swastika had been hauled down and the flag of Austria once more flew over this city which became part of Hitler's greater Reich with the Anchluss.

Women tossed flowers at the doughboys, cognac and wine were brought out, and troops in German uniforms but wearing "Free Austria" arm bands shouted: "Heil Americans."

Salzburg, Austrian city of 60,000 which once was considered the eastern stronghold of the Nazi redoubt, fell as easily after armored cavalry raced 25 miles across Bavaria.

Gen. Patton's U. S. Third army tanks and troops were closing in rapidly on Linz from the north, northwest and west.

Mop-up forces 10 miles south of Hitler's captured home town of Braunau liberated 21,000 Allied prisoners, 4,100 of them American airmen.

The Americans were hungry but otherwise in fair condition, but Russians, Poles and Czechs among the prisoners had been starved and the bodies of some lay unburied in the woods.

SOUND PENSION GIVEN TEACHERS

Legislature To Match Contributions From School Employes

Lansing, May 4 (AP)—Michigan public school employes were given an actuarily sound retirement system according to a bill signed into law today by Governor Kelly.

Combining the present teachers' retirement fund and the non-teaching fund, the law provides that in each succeeding biennium the legislature appropriate an amount not to exceed five per cent of the fund to match the total contribution made during the preceding biennium by public school employes. However, the legislature is to provide not less than the amount necessary to meet the pension payroll.

The 1945 legislature, to meet the financial requirements of the act, appropriated $3,200,000 for the 1945-46 fiscal year.

Contributions from present teachers will not be used to pay retirement benefits of a former teacher, as has been done up to the present.

Governor Kelly also signed into law a bill making it a felony for a member of the legislature to be employed by any special interest for a fee greater than that he would receive if he were not a legislator, or to accept compensation for services in connection with passage or defeat of a bill.

The bill includes all legislators and was introduced as a result of the Carr grand jury investigating graft in state government.

ACCORD NEAR ON PLANS FOR WORLD PEACE

Anglo-Americans would like to see in a new government.

There were other reports, pointing up the size of the Polish dispute, that Mikolajczyk would insist on taking with him a full slate of spokesmen representing the London Poles.

While the big four were moving relatively smoothly toward a union of ideas on fundamental changes to be proposed for the world charter, some cleavage developed between the British and Americans.

Continued discussion shunted them away from actual deadlocks. But there was considerable debate over a British proposal to ease up a requirement for a unanimous vote of the big five in a projected security council of the world organization in instances where definite action is not needed.

The British also suggested that a place be given the international labor organization within a world economic and social council, but got no encouragement from either the United States or Russia.

Several other points of difference among the big four—some minor, some major—required adjustment before the midnight deadline for filing formal amendments with the conference secretariat.

Ribbentrop, Hitler's Treaty Maker, Joins Parade Of Vanishing Nazis

The face of Joachim von Ribbentrop, a face compounded of cruelty and weakness, will be seen no more in the capitals of Europe. But though he has been dismissed from his post of Nazi foreign minister by the new chancellor, Ribbentrop remains high on the Allies' list of Nazi war criminals still alive and at large.

With Hitler's rise to power, Ribbentrop switched from peddling champagne to peddling the Fuehrer's false promises among the uneasy governments of prewar Europe. In his role of treaty maker, he composed and put his name to some of the most cynical falsehoods in the history of diplomacy.

Above, left, he is shown at Munich in 1938 with the late Neville Chamberlain, then British Prime Minister, en route to meet Hitler for the infamous partition of Czechoslovakia and the promise to Chamberlain of "peace in our time."

The following summer came the "non-aggression" treaty with Soviet Russia. In the center picture Ribbentrop is being greeted by Hitler as he returned from Moscow with the document which was scrapped by the German invasion of Russia, less than two years later. Ribbentrop was among the chief engineers of such other agreements as the Axis treaties with Japan and Italy, the "no more war" treaty with France in 1938, and the alliances with the various satellite nations that clustered around Hitler in his days of power.

In 1940, when the picture at right was taken, Ribbentrop, Mussolini and Ciano (center), Mussolini's son-in-law and foreign minister, were riding the crest. But even then Ribbentrop was not popular with his allies. Ciano is said to have hated and distrusted the foreign minister of his powerful Axis partner.

Today Mussolini and Ciano are dead. And Ribbentrop, his political career ended, can look forward only to a similar fate. (NEA Photos.)

DOENITZ MIGHT AID IN ESCAPES

Choice Of U-Boat Chief Points To Possible Flight Plan

By CURT RIESS
NEA Staff Correspondent

Paris—If the surviving high Nazis—including Hitler, who may still be alive—intend to attempt an escape by U-boat and perhaps take refuge in Japan, they have the man best able to help them in Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, new pilot of the sinking Third Reich.

This may be a reason for Hitler's surprise selection of this fervent Nazi and leading exponent of unrestricted U-boat warfare. However, there are several other possible explanations of the by-passing of Himmler and other Hitler intimates high in Nazi or army circles:

1. Himmler or Goering could not have been considered safe by Hitler because they had already started negotiations with the Allies.

2. Such Nazis as Goebbels or Ley did not have sufficient military qualifications to assume leadership in the midst of war.

3. The fact that no general, but an admiral of the almost non-existent German fleet, was named as fuehrer means that there was not one general that Hitler could trust.

4. If the war is to be continued on any scale in order to help Japan, Doenitz can still handle everything connected with U-boat warfare.

5. Doenitz is the least known and hence the least compromised of all the top Nazis.

It is not certain, of course, that all these considerations were weighed by Hitler, or when the conclusion was reached. The decision on his successor may have been made by the circle around him—Himmler or Goebbels, for instance. They possibly thought that by selecting a relatively pale personality, they could gain a better peace from the Allies.

Planned U-Boat Strategy in Peace Years

Doenitz was a U-boat commander in the last war. In the interval of peace he prepared the submarine campaign for the present war. When Hitler came to power Doenitz assured him that U-boat warfare would defeat Britain.

Doenitz' ruthlessness endeared him to Hitler, who promoted him repeatedly until he rose to be the grand admiral of the Nazi fleet. Doenitz is personally responsible for the cruel conduct of German sub-marine warfare. He rallied the U-boat crews with the order to "Kill! Kill! Kill!" Many times he ordered the machine-gunning of the survivors of torpedoed Allied ships.

The western Allies know Doenitz' record, and for that reason any Nazi hopes that the new fuehrer can win them easier terms are obviously vain.

It is possible that the United States and England, with whom Doenitz says he is willing to make peace, feel more bitterness toward him than do the Russians, against whom he wants to continue the fight.

PVT. NAUMANN IS LIBERATED

Was Prisoner Of War In Germany More Than Two Years

Pvt. Leslie Naumann of Cornell, who has been a prisoner of war in Germany for more than two years, was liberated by American forces on April 13, according to a letter received from him by his mother, Mrs. Paul Naumann, 522 South Nineteenth street.

Pvt. Naumann was one of the first Delta county boys to be taken captive by the Nazis. He was confined at Stalag prison camp 3-B for many months, but was transferred before the Allied armies came in that territory.

In the letter, dated April 18, Pvt. Naumann said he was feeling fine and that he expected to be taken by airplane to France the following day. He said the American Red Cross had done much for him and the other prisoners. The chance to get some more good American coffee was one of his first thrills after liberation, he added.

Pvt. Naumann indicated that he expected to return to the States in the near future.

The End Is Near

THE fall of Hamburg and the collapse of the German armies on the northern front, coupled with the surge of the American Third and Seventh armies through the Bavarian Alps in southern Germany makes the issue of a formal German surrender relatively unimportant. Except for a few isolated pockets, virtually all of Germany is already in Allied control.

The mass surrender of German troops on every front within the past few days, particularly since the announcement of the death of Hitler, bears proof that the war is all but over in Germany, whether Admiral Doenitz makes a formal surrender to the Allies or not. Most of Austria and Czechoslovakia still remain in Nazi hands, but the positions of the enemy there are hopeless and they are showing virtually no organized resistance. The designation of Prague as an open city reveals that there will be no staunch defense in Czechoslovakia.

There remain then only two areas where the Germans can continue the hopeless struggle—Denmark and Norway. The German garrison in Denmark cannot hold out long, isolated as they are from the homeland and with an overland route open to the Allied armies marching in on them.

Only in Norway can the Germans hope to prolong the war for any length of time. There are already indications that the Nazis are ready to quit the fight there, too, realizing the extreme hopelessness of their situation. Undoubtedly there are many Nazi war criminals who have sought refuge in Norway who will seek to keep the garrison fighting to the last, but the 150,000 or more German troops there are not likely to stake their own lives for prolonged protection of a handful of Nazi war criminals.

The next few days will probably reveal whether Norway will be liberated without a fight, or whether it will actually be necessary to land an Allied invasion army there to round up the last dying remnants of the German Wehrmacht.

Moves Toward Economy

PRESIDENT Truman's observations as head of the senate war investigating committee doubtless prompted his recent recommendation for a 10 per cent slash in federal expenditures.

The economy-minded president has ordered that the unnecessary Office of Civilian Defense go out of business on June 30, a move that will be regretted only by the officeholders who have been sitting around and drawing fancy salaries for several months. Other wartime alphabetical agencies were scheduled to receive budget slashes totaling more than 80 million dollars. Most substantial savings would be effected, however, by his proposal for a seven billion dollar cutback in shipbuilding. In addition, he promised further economies as the military situation improves.

While he presided as chairman of the war investigating committee, Truman saw at first hand how millions of the taxpayers' dollars were being wasted. In the frenzy of war production, it was inevitable, of course, that many mistakes would be made. But now, the dangers that were feared then have passed, and we can view our military needs with a clearer perspective. We can again give thought to economy in government, and it is fortunate that President Truman has the necessary background of knowledge and experience for tackling this difficult but important job.

Farms On Increase

PRELIMINARY figures compiled in the 1945 Census of Agriculture disclose that Delta county has 1,561 farms as compared with 1,426 in 1940, a gain of 125 in the five-year period. Farm acreage in Delta county also has increased from 159,406 to 208,416 acres, and the average size of the farms gained from 112 to 134 acres.

The growth in Delta county agriculture was apparently due to the impetus given by the wartime demand for food. Another important factor is the fact that farming has been more profitable during the past half-decade.

Farming has not yet reached the saturation point in Delta county, however. There is still planty of good, untilled land that could be utilized for dairying and the successful growing of potatoes and other crops. Agriculture will offer opportunities to returning service men and war factory workers when the nation is again at peace, and should not be overlooked in the postwar planning of Escanaba and other Upper Peninsula communities.

There's Still Hope

THE Italians did not prove to be good soldiers while fighting for Benito Mussolini on the sands of Libya and the mountains of Greece. They were objects of much Nazi derision, and they were scorned by Americans and others while they fought as partners of the Rome-Berlin Axis.

But there was a reason for it, and it was simply that the Italians did not think much of the idea of fighting and dying for Hitler. Obviously, they felt the way about their "Sawdust Caesar."

Liberated from their Facist yoke, the Italians gave a good account of themselves in fighting as allies of the British and Americans against the Germans in northern Italy. That they have some good stuff in them was further demonstrated by the manner in which they disposed of their one-time dictator.

Captured by Italian Partisans near Milan, Mussolini offered them an empire if they would spare his life. But he had no takers. Instead, he got what he deserved. They sent him back to the city where he got his political start, back to the gutter where he came from. They kicked him around in death as he kicked them around in life. There was no compromising; they shot him in the back of the head, the kind of death reserved for the knave that he was.

The Italian people, given a chance, can fight for a cause they believe in. There is still hope for Italy.

MORE TEACHERS NEEDED

(Christian Science Monitor)

Unless more young high-school students can be persuaded to adopt teaching as a career, the schoolrooms of America will soon be intolerably crowded. Better paying jobs, better social conditions, shorter hours in other fields of work—to say nothing of service in the armed forces—drew so many teachers from the profession in the past four years that the National Education Association estimates at least 10,000 vacancies for which teachers were being sought last fall.

Now a million-and-a-half annual increase in the birth rate, observable since 1942, is about to catch up with the teacher shortage. The war babies are about to go to kindergarten. Already classrooms that customarily held 25 children must accommodate 45, a situation which makes proper teaching almost impossible.

The various States are bestirring themselves to find remedies. Some are raising salaries, thus tackling the most serious phase of the problem. In a profession as important as any other to today's world, it is nothing short of shocking to learn that three in every 100 persons are paid less than $600 a year. Single salary schedules are coming into favor, a plan which will pay equally for equal talents regardless of sex or of the grade taught. Also, it seems certain that eventually the senseless ban on married teachers will be lifted in the States where it still exists.

Let us hope the reforms prove neither too little nor too late. The times are forcing an acknowledgement of the importance of the teaching profession to the welfare of the world. Young people should be encouraged to become educators if they have aptitude in that direction.

With the grisley news these days, it's a relief to get your mind on something else for a few minutes.

WHAT'S THE ORIGIN?

(Scrapbook Item)

Q. What is the origin of the slang expression, to turn "thumbs down"?

A. The expression is not slang. On the contrary, it is a literal translation of the Latin pollice verso, "with thumb reversed (turned downward)," the dates from the great public games of ancient Rome.

Some of these spectacles lasted as long as a hundred days. They were usually staged in celebration of military victories, or other occasions of festival nature.

One of the most popular features was the gladiatorial games in which as many as 100 pairs of gladiators were pitted in mortal combat. The gladiators were recruited mainly from slaves or criminals, and were trained in great gymnasiums for their part in the games.

They wore some armor, and usually fought with short swords. When a gladiator was wounded or bested in combat so as to be at the mercy of his adversary he would raise his hand with the forefinger extended to implore clemency of the spectators.

If the spectators were in favor of mercy, they waved their handkerchiefs and the defeated gladiator's life was spared. If they were displeased by his cowardice, or lack of skill in the fight, they turned their thumbs down. At this signal, the victorious gladiator would plunge his sword into the heart of his defeated adversary.

The games took many other forms: men were pitted against lions and tigers; one gladiator would be armed with a throwing net and a trident, the other with a long dagger or light sword; boxers fought with each fish encased in a wicked covering of leather and iron called a cestus, a well-directed blow from which usually was fatal.

World Events Analyzed

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

A series of clarifying statements has opened the way to positive action to straighen out our dwindling food supply so that it will be possible to send help to liberated Europe.

Childs

First came Samuel I. Rosenman's penetrating report on the grave need of the liberated countries. As released by the White House in summary, it was a statesman-like document which should leave no one in doubt as to the consequences of ignoring the hunger existing in Europe today.

It is not what may happen next week, or even next winter. As Rosenman said, the future peace of Europe depends largely on the restoration of the economy of France, Belgium and Holland. Nothing that is done at San Francisco will have the slightest meaning if the present confusion and hardship deteriorate into chaos and destitution.

—COAL IS RECOVERY KEY—

Even in abbreviated form as released to the Press, the Rosenman report makes clear the way in which the entire economy of Europe is tied together. Coal is one of the most important keys to the recovery of Western Europe. If coal is to come out of German mines, then, as Rosenman points out, mining machinery must be shipped to Germany and German miners must get enough to eat. This raises political questions of the highest order that must soon be answered.

The second statement came from President Truman. Boldly and courageously, he rebuked the "irresponsible" critics of OPA whose real aim is to undermine all price control. We must do our part, the President said, in helping to prevent anarchy, riot and pestilence in the liberated areas, and that means an ever greater demand on our resources.

This will be welcome assurance to the world that America intends to participate, as we did after 1918, in helping war-wracked peoples back to normal life. It remains, of course, to find the means to carry out this declared policy. Good intentions, without the stuff to back them up, are worse than nothing at all.

That is where the third statement serves a useful purpose. It comes from the special house committee which has been trying, soberly and seriously, to find out what is wrong with our food supply and why the Black Market should be such a menace at this time. The way the house committee, headed by Rep. Clinton P. Anderson, has operated is in marked contrast to the technique of the senate agriculture committee, which has served as a sounding board for special interests warring on any and all price control.

—COORDINATION NEEDED—

The house group presents a set of recommendations that could well form the basis for a new food policy. Above all, they stress the need of offering real inducements to farmers to produce more food. They emphasize the need, too, for overall coordination of the food program. The majority of the committee, however, does not go so far as the Republican members, who urge "a single authority in charge of all phases" of food production.

If the Rosenman report makes plain how tightly the economy of Europe and the world is tied together, the house committee shows how chislers in one line can throw the whole price and supply structure out of kilter. Because Black Market operators have got hold of a considerable percentage of the beef that is sold, consumers are turning to poultry; and therefore eggs, which have been abundant, may go into short supply.

The committee report tells of a Black Market operator who went to the owner of a flock of 3,000 laying hens with an offer of $8,000 for immediate sale. If the hen population is decimated in that way, then we shall certainly create an egg shortage.

"Once legitimate distribution has been disrupted and Black Market channels are set up," the report points out, "it becomes increasingly difficult to re-establish the normal channels of distribution and to make them subject to legal controls."

It is so hard for us to learn that, whether we like it or not, we are bound together in "one world," the prophetic title Wendell Willkie gave to his book. When individuals go against the rules designed to protect all of us, then all of us must suffer, and the same thing is true for nations in a broader sense—a lesson we are learning, once again, to our infinite sorrow.

SWANS GO NORTH — Mrs. George L. Kieser of Bay Shore Road reports that "two weeks ago on Saturday evening" (April 21) what appeared to be all of the swans from Portage point took off for the north "in a huge V formation."

Dunathan

"But I find there are still three beautiful swans out there in the marsh," she continues. "They glisten in the sun like a fluff of white satin.

"Perhaps they have decided to stay with us and raise a family. Wouldn't it be a thrill to see a mother swan bring her—a—whatchacallums off the nest? I'm stumped. My bird book gives no aid. If a baby duck is a duckling, and a baby goose a gosling, what's a baby swan?"

In the event the three remaining swans nest here, which is unlikely, you would see:

A nest lined with down from the bird's own body, made of sticks and water plants, and sometimes two feet high and six feet across. In this nest you would find two to six eggs of grayish color, which are laid in June.

The young when they hatch are covered with grayish-brown down, which becomes snow white by the end of a year. And these ungainly young birds are called cygnets. The name probably comes from the scientific name for the swan, which is a subfamily Cygninae of the Anatidae. Naturalists place most of the species in the genus Cygnus.

American swans nest in the Arctic regions. Why three of the Portage point flock remained is their own business. If they fly north, however, there will be enough to form a V anyway.

DEAD OR ALIVE — Adolph Hitler is reportedly dead. Yet authoritative sources have indicated their belief that the monster whose madness has drenched the world in blood still lives.

You will recall that the Nazis reported Hitler was killed defending Berlin, the English reported that he had died of a stroke, and the Russians that he and his rat-faced liar Goebbels had committed suicide.

The variety of these stories only strengthens the opinion of many that Hitler has disappeared underground, or has flew Germany. How Hitler could obtain entrance into another country is difficult to determine, yet it is entirely possible by the use of disguise and through the efforts of his famatic followers.

Few countries would knowingly give refuge to the beast of Berlin, yet he might continue in residence in even a neutral or enemy country for a considerable time without his identity becoming known.

Hitler's body has not yet been found.

Under these circumstances it perhaps would be well for the United Nations to post a reward for the capture of the outlaw of humanity—dead or alive.

CLIFTON WEBB is telling this story of "Laura," the mystery thriller in which he recently was starred and which brought him unanimous praise from the film critics. A print of this movie was flown to the front in Germany, where General Patton was among those who attended a showing. Patton studied Webb's portrayal of a cane-swinging, fashionably attired gentleman-columnist, accustomed to fine living. Then, during the scene showing Webb typing his column while sitting in an onyx bathtub, the voice of General Patton was heard shouting in longing: "Gee what wouldn't I give to have that so-and-so as a replacement."

BEFORE ROOSEVELT DIED he designated Harry Hopkins, Sam Rosenman and Grace Tully as a committee of three to supervise the disposal of his private papers. Rosenman, incidentally, may leave for San Francisco on Wednesday. The New York Democrats are ready to offer him the designation for the Supreme Court bench here to succeed Judge Wasservogel, who is retiring this fall. Ed Brown of the Democratic National Committee publicity staff has resigned and will open his own public relations office in Washington. Postmaster Gen. Frank Walker had his commission signed by President Truman to head the Reparations Commission in Moscow when he withdrew.

GRACE MOORE gave a recital at Fairfield, Iowa, a few days ago. It is the smallest town she ever played, smaller even than the Tennessee town in which she was born. But the fee paid her was a big-city one, and the opera star learned that Alec Templeton and Robert St. John had preceded her in the auditorium, and that next season the Minneapolis Symphony would be brought to Fairfield, Iowa, for a concert. She asked one of the auditorium officials how it was possible for such a small town to afford this entertainment. He pointed to the taxable juke boxes and slot machines and explained: "They pay for the culture of Fairfield."

Inevitably, when she'd hang up her panties to dry she'd find them gone and she'd next see the panties flying above a tank going into battle. Miss Tilton is about to go abroad again. This time she's taking dozens of panties all with her name emblazoned on them, to be flown as pennants. The Army has purchased Morris Ernst's "The Best Is Yet," for distribution in Army Camps. FERENC MOLNAR went to the Federal Building a few days ago, concerning his naturalization. The man who had been Hungary's foremost playwright waited impatiently in an outer office. He turned to his wife, Lili Darvas, and said: "In Budapest, would they have dared keep Molnar waiting? No." They waited another half-hour. "In Hungary," the impatient playwright said, "would anyone have dared keep Molnar sitting outside for even five minutes? No." After another half-hour he started pacing the hallway, muttering: "In Hungary such a thing could not happen." Then he was called inside, his papers were approved and he emerged shouting: "To hell with Hungary."

DREW PEARSON

(Col. R. S. Allen now in active service)

San Francisco.—A hot behind-the-scenes fight has developed in the surplus property board which effects the industry of the entire nation, especially on the west coast. It involves the disposition of several billion dollars' worth of machine tools owned by the U. S. government and loaned to big war contractors. How these machine tools are sold is going to spell the difference between concentration and diversification of industry for years to come.

Pearson

For instance, Henry Kaiser, the big west coast boat builder, has ideas about going into the automobile business. He figures that if the west coast can operate some of the biggest airplane factories in the nation, it can also build automobiles. The west coast is dotted with airplane factories all the way from Seattle to San Diago and has skilled mechanics who will be out of jobs after the war. Therefore, Kaiser figures on taking up the slack by making automobiles.

However, the first requirement of the automobile industry, or for that matter any other large-scale manufacturing, is machine tools. Billions in machine tools soon will be disposed of as surplus war property, and the companies that get them will control the general peacetime production of the U S. A. during the immediate years after the war.

If Henry Kaiser could lay his hands on a reasonable quota of the machine tools, for instance, he would have made an important step toward starting the auto industry on the west coast. If not, it would take him two or three years to get other machine tools. Meanwhile Detroit would have a head start which would be difficult for him to overtake.

—BACKSTAGE ROW—

This is where the row inside the surplus property board comes in. Ex-Senator Guy Gilette of Iowa, chairman of the board, believes that independent businessmen, such as Kaiser, should have a chance to bid on these government-owned machine tools.

But Colonel Edward Heller and Ex-Governor Robert A. Hurley of Connecticut, the two other board members, oppose. They believe the companies now using the machine tools, though not owning them, should have first lien on buying them. This would mean that General Mtors, one of the biggest war contractors, would get a chance to buy a tremendous amount of machine tools and would get a head start on smaller companies.

Other big auto companies and other big contractors likewise would get a head start on peacetime production if permitted to buy the tools they are now using.

Behind this 2 to 1 split inside the surplus property board are also the army, navy and war production board, all of whom strongly favor the big companies when it comes to machine tools.

However, Chairman Gillette has the support of the justice department which has just completed a survey showing that the government controls 75 per cent of the best machine tools in the country and that the business firms owning them will dominate industry.

Ex-Senator Gillette also argues that after the last war the big war contractors were permitted to buy in the government's machine tools which they were using, so that they got a tremendous monopolistic head start on reconversion, while small business was left out in the cold.

Note—Interesting fact is that Col. Edward Heller, who has taken a position which would hinder diversification of industry to the west coast, comes from the west coast.

—STASSEN CONSULTS—

If bustling Senator Vandenberg of Michigan ever wants to run for the presidency—as some people say he will—he may find that ex-governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota is one up on him.

It all boils down to the fact that Stassen believes in "consulting." Vandenberg doesn't. That may sound unimportant. But when you are consulting with the heads of large church and fraternal organizations which influence thousands of votes, it makes a difference. The negro consultants at this conference, for instance, probably could swing an election in certain key cities like Pittsburgh, St. Louis, and Kansas City.

Anyway ,Commander Harold Stassen, a candidate for the GOP nomination last year was given one of the cast-off jobs of the conference—consulting with consultants. Nobody quite knew what to do with them, especially Senator Vandenberg. So Stassen took on the task of keeping the consultants informed.

Last week he took on to explain the dispute over rotating the chairmanship of the conference as urged by Russia and did a very good job of it. He explained that the Soviet believed that all the four inviting powers were equal co-hosts and that you had to try to put yourself in their position and understand their point of view.

Explaining the Soviet demand for three votes in the assembly, Stassen told the consultants:

"What's in Molotov's mind is the fact that all of the American states on this continent have a vote, and they frequently vote together. Also the British have six votes."

Then Stassen threw open the debate to the consultants and asked them what they thought about different conference developments. He also discussed the question of island trusteeship, explaining that the United States wanted to make certain that never again would it be threatened from the Pacific Islands, yet at the same time wanted to make adequate provision for ultimate sovereignty for countries which deserved their independence, such as the Philippine Islands.

The Pacific Reporter

By Associated Press

BY HAROLD STREETER

Corregidor, Manila Bay (AP)—More than two months after this fortress island was invaded by American paratroops and amphibious forces, a visitor still gets an escort. Some die-hard Japanese soldiers still linger in Corregidor caves.

The escort consists of a truck load of helmeted, greenclad men of Maj. Gen. William C. Chase's 38th Division with carbines ready for instant action. Near the point to be visited they fan out, peering down slopes, keeping eyes on cliff sides, wary about thickets.

Only a day before a group of American war correspondents, touring Pacific bases, visited Corregidor, soldiers came upon a Japanese sitting near the shore, holding a machine gun. The Yanks opened up but he dived for a cave, pulling his weapon after him. Grenades were tossed in but the foe, willing to live a rat's life, probably was safe within the recesses.

"If they were Germans, they'd know the jig's up," said General Chase. "But these dirty little Nips have to be picked off."

A week before the correspondents visited Corregidor, a group of soldiers, finding a shaft leading from a cliff top to a big cave, poured oil into it but before the fuel could be ignited, Japanese in the cave committed suicide by touching off the biggest explosion yet to rock the island.

The blast blew the roof off the cliff, left a hole big enough for a full-sized football field, and killed a few of the Yanks unfortunate enough to be caught on top.

* * *

When we visited the east entrance to Malenta Tunnel, catching the stench of the dead within while 10 yards away, smoke was pouring out of it for the first time in weeks from some mysterious fire inside.

In the distance, we could hear blasts as soldiers on nearby tiny Caballo Island fired phosphorous shells into caves to clean up Japanese diehards there.

Corregidor, its barracks, its facilities and structures such as Gen. Douglas MacArthur's demolished home, is conquered. There's no mistaking that.

But the dirty, desolate business of hunting the enemy night and day constitutes a capsule picture of what is happening everywhere that Japanese are to be found.

Benefit Planned To Aid Disabled Veterans Of War

A card party to raise funds for the Ida Hibbard Fund which is interested in aiding disabled veterans by obtaining sculptured hands and arms for some who have lost them is scheduled for next Tuesday night at the Masonic hall under the auspices of Minnewasca Chapter No. 96, Order of the Eastern Star.

Members of the chapter are sponsoring tables.

While the army furnishes the best possible restorations from the utilitarian point of view, to boys who have suffered amputations of hands or arms, it has been found that they do not always satisfy the individual's desire to look normal.

This quality, lacking in a mechanical hand or arm, is stressed in sculptural restorations of Beaver Edwards, Detroit sculptor.

The advantage of a Beaver Edwards' restoration lies in its resemblance to the natural part. It is made of a flexible plastic, flesh-like in appearance and to the touch. A hand is made to be the exact mate of the remaining member and is so natural in every detail that it will defy detection on close inspection.

So that more returning soldiers who have suffered amputations can be furnished sculptured restorations, the Ida Hibbard Fund has been incorporated. Contributions to this fund are disbursed to aid the greatest number of soldiers possible.

Mather H, S. Frolics Will Be Presented On Tuesday, May 15

Munising, Mich.—The 1945 edition of the Mather high school Frolics will be presented Tuesday evening, May 15. As usual the new edition will consist of some dozen different acts representing the best talent of the high school. Also as in previous years the net profits of the Frolics will be used to help support the school's interscholastic program. With so many of our young people away in the service of their country, attendance at football and basketball games has dropped in recent years, while maintenance costs have in many cases risen.

By attending the Frolics you will be helping maintain competitive sports, but you will also be enjoying two hours of uninterrupter entertainment. There are no pauses between acts.

Doug Belfry, who has adorned Frolics programs in the past, both as a student and a graduate, has consented to appear in the 1945 edition. A well-known creator of mirth, Ernest St. Andrew, will present a novel and hilarious 'animal' act. As usual there will be a Walters' sponsored act which fact speaks for itself.

The well-known Lezotte Sisters, who have been headliners on three successive Frolics, will be in the present edition only in part, but a big act is being built up around those who remain in high school. There will be some good dancing acts, both individual and ensemble.

And last, as is to be expected, there will be a fast and furious athletic act. Next week we shall tell you about other new and novel acts. There will be music, mirth, dancing and acrobatics.

Mather High Honor Society Initiates Six New Members

Six new members were initiated into the Wm. G. Mather Chapter of the National Honor Society Wednesday evening in the club room at the school. They were Audrey Gerndt, Barbara Hankin, Hilma Nybeck, and Martin Hendrickson of the twelfth grade, and Mary Jayne Shampine of the eleventh grade. These young people were chosen for outstanding scholarship, service, leadership and character.

Evelyn Huse, who was elected to the society last year, presided, and conducted the initiation exercises. Nancy Wood, who was also elected last year, contributed a clarinet solo. Miss Alice Baker, of the high school teaching staff, was the speaker of the evening. H. A. Wood, on behalf of the board of education of the Munising Township schools, presented to the new members, the emblems of the society.

Youth Conference Held At Munising Is Great Success

The young people's conference at the Mather high school Tuesday was so successful and so well received that it is possible it may be made an annual affair.

The senior high school pupils of Eben and Trenary were present as guests of the high school. If the conference is repeated next year it is hoped that conditions will then be such that Grand Marais high school pupils may attend also.

Clifford Engman and Mary Jane Shampine presided jointly at the opening session to welcome visiting students. Altho the program was mainly impromptu, it went over very well, and built up enthusiasm for the reception of Dr. Frank Slutz, of Dayton, Ohio, speaker of the day.

All pupils from the seventh grade up heard Dr. Slutz's morning address. In the afternoon the doctor answered many questions presented to him by the senior high students. Added value to the conference was given by the presence of Don P. Sherman, of the faculty of the Michigan College of Mines and Technology, and a former member of the faculty of Mather high school. Mr. Sherman gave a very practical talk on recreation and answered many questions in the fields of vacations and college training.

Cliff M. Drury, of the staff of state Y. M. C. A., arranged for the conference and Dr. Slutz's tour through the Upper Peninsula. He also proved himself a dynamic song leader. The three schools will welcome both Dr. Slutz and Mr. Drury any time they find it possible to return.

Close Race Seen In American Loop; Mack Picks Tigers To Win Flag

DETROIT HOLDS BEST PITCHERS

Yanks And Browns Not To Be Sneezed At, Connie Avers

Philadelphia, May 4 (AP) — Connie Mack looks for another close finish in the American League pennant race, but he thinks the Detroit Tigers have the strength necessary to win.

The venerable manager of the Athletics says the return of Al Benton to the pitching staff and the addition of outfielder Roy Cullenbine, obtained in a deal with the Cleveland Indians, will give the Tigers the edge.

"Detroit is the one to beat without question," Mr. Mack declared.

However, the dean of baseball thinks the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Browns will furnish plenty of opposition before the end of the season.

"Pitching is an important quality, particularly in these times, and Detroit has it," Mr. Mack said.

"The Browns can't be overlooked, either," he said, "for they have all their key men back and while they didn't open with the same rush as they did last year, they have to be reckoned with."

He predicts pitchers will prove valuable to the Yankees, although "they seem to be having some infield trouble. Joe McCarthy will have them straightened out in due time and then they will be real tough to beat."

Mr. Mack said he wasn't trying to belittle the other teams in the league and that he wasn't at all satisfied with his own Athletics.

"We could use a little more pitching strength, too," he said.

Minnesota-Michigan Contest Rained Out

Chicago, May 4 (AP)—Rain today postponed a Minnesota-Michigan game which, pre-season dopesters figured, would have a big bearing on the Western Conference baseball title.

Only one of four scheduled games was played in the conference today. Illinois beat Ohio State, 3 2, when Bob Anderlick tripled in the ninth to score Eddie Planert. The Indiana - Purdue game at Lafayette was postponed by wet grounds and Wisconsin-Northwestern elected to play a doubleheader Saturday.

Minnesota and Michigan will play off their two games tomorrow, and Illinois and Ohio State will wind up with a single game.

Brooklyn Dodgers Have Daffy Rival In New Orleans

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, May 3 (AP)—To expect an ex-member of the Brooklyn Dodger front office to raise an eyebrow at the slap-happy doings of any other ball club would seem like expecting a boilermaker to be scared white by the roar of a cap pistol, but Sgt. L. M. (Mickey) McConnell admits he is slightly bewildered by some antics he has observed at New Orleans.

Mickey, now stationed in the Louisiana city, formerly was a co-director of the Dodger farm system, so he knows all about baseball's left-handed monkey wrenches and three-way revolving doors. That is, anything out of the ordinary ordinarily doesn't surprise him.

Perhaps the fact the New Orleans Club is a former Dodger fan has something to do with it.

Maybe the fact that Fresco Thompson, one of the saner members of Uncle Robie's Flatbush clan, is the pelican manager, is the cause. At any rate, the club is a dilly.

For instance, Mickey relates that a young man named Skelton barged into the office of business Manager Charlie Hurth, slammed his contract on the desk and announced:

"I'm a holdout, but I'm warning you right now that if you don't give me a raise I'll sign that contract." He got the raise!

Believes In Spirits

"Then there was a southpaw pitcher named Sanner," Mickey continues. "He is the same citizen who took three days to get from Grand Central Station to Bear Mountain to train with the Dodgers in 1943.

Sanner lives in Arkansas, and was assigned to the Pels last summer, but couldn't seem to locate the place. He finally arrived a few days ago, and it's rumored he built a raft and came down the Mississippi with high water after Thompson sent word by one of Bob Burns' relatives the celestial city might be reached that way.

"Thompson is a great believer in spirits, and to show the opposition that his players are eager for the fray he has devised a scheme to have his relief pitchers sprint from the bull pen and slide into the pitcher's mound, just to show how anxious they are to face opposing batters. Tommy's No. 1 Fireman, Jack McClure, is now having daily sessions in the practice pit with Professor Thompson to prepare for the daily dash and crash.

The Pels recently played a game to collect clothing for distribution to war-torn lands. Fresco learned the New Orleans quota was 500,000 pounds, whereupon he remarked :"Why, that's half my wardrobe—but only the winter wardrobe, of course."

Maybe the Dodgers should take back the Pelicans as a farm club. After all, there's no use wasting all that training and talent. Maybe the papa bums were getting a little jealous of their precocious offspring.

Senators Defeat Athletics, 5 to 4

Washington, May 4 (AP)—Washington defeated Philadelphia 5-4 in the first night game of the season here tonight before 8,735 fans. Marino Pieretti went the route for the Senators while the Mackmen called on Jess Flores, Lew Knerr and Joe Berry.

Pieretti seemed to be pitching sandlots ball when the Athletics touched him for four runs in the first inning. Four singles a double by Dick Siebert accounted for the four runs. After the first inning Connie Mack's crew only threatened once, in the sixth, but a fast double play ended the score.

The Senators got two of these back in the first and tied the score in the third.

Pieretti opened the fourth with a triple and scored the winning run on George Myatt's long fly.

Willis And Alter To Clash At Arena

Detroit, May 4 (AP)— Lou Alter, New York featherweight, was signed today to meet Leroy Willis, once-beaten Detroiter, in the 10-rounde headliner of an Arena Gardens fight show Monday, replacing the Red Cochrane-Joe Gambaro bout that was cancelled by mutual consent of all the principals.

The bout was called off after Boxing Commissioner John Hettche watched Gambaro work out Thursday and indicated he was not a worthy opponent for Cochrane, the welterweight champion released from the navy.

Willis, outstanding Detroiter, has won 18 of 19 professional fights while Alter has been beaten only three times.

DELAYED TILT MONDAY

Chicago, May 4 (AP) — Today's postponed game between the Cleveland Indians and the Chicago White Sox will be played Monday, an open date for both clubs.

COLLEGE BASEBALL

University of Illinois 3; Ohio State 2.

MOUND STAFFS SHIFTED AROUND

Flock Of Doubleheaders Looms As Weatherman Does Clubs Dirt

New York, May 4 (AP) — Rain washed out the major league baseball schedule for the second straight day today, making it necessary for big league managers to concentrate on arranging their pitching staffs for the forthcoming flock of double headers.

Only Philadelphia at Washington in the American League, in a night game, still remained on today's schedule.

The double header dilemma, always a headache to managers, means that more and more rookies will have to be entrusted with starting assignments. A check reveals that 12 rookie hurlers, six in each league, have been given starting assignments and own a combined record of six victories and 10 defeats.

Dave Ferriss and Jim Wilson, Boston Red Sox freshmen, have turned in the best jobs. Each hurled a shutout, Ferriss giving up five hits to Philadelphia; Wilson gave four to Washington.

Washington's Marino Pieretti, the five-foot seven-inch righthander, who won 26 games for Portland last years, has also turned in two sterling mound efforts. After defeating the Athletics 4-3 in 12 innings April 19, the Pacific Coast League Italian was forced to go 13 innings before he was beaten by New York a week later 2-1.

The Yankees also unveiled a promising newcomer in Allen Gettel, a 17-game winner at Norfolk last year. In his only starting appearance he defeated the Athletics 6-4. Walter Wilson, a 28-year-old Detroit rookie, pitched a fine but losing game against Chicago last week, while Charles (Red) Embree, from whom Cleveland expects much this year, has dropped two games, one 3-2 in 12 innings, the other 4-0.

Andy (Swede) Hansen forced his way into the New York Giants big four with two victories in three starts. Other National League freshmen flingers who made favorable impressions, although losing were Vic Lombardi of Brooklyn; Frank Dasso, Cincinnati; Charley Sproull, Philadelphia; and Jorge Comellas, Chicago.

At least two dozen other rookie hurlers have appeared in relief with some highly touted newcomers like Loren Bain and Bill Emmerich of the Giants; Bill Pierce of the Tigers; Cy Buker, Dodgers; Earl Jones, Browns; George Wooend, Cubs and Wilbur Reese, Phillies; still waiting for their first test.

Adolf Hitler only a few short years ago, in contempt of his democratic opponents, uttered a prayer that fate would afford him at least one adversary "worthy of his genius."

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

The Escanaba Softball association is optimistic about the possibility of completing its lighted field this season after four long years of patient waiting. Everything is in readiness to finish the job started in 1941 as soon as the electric wire is made available. Poles are erected, lamps and bulbs on hand, connections installed to the main line and only the installation of the wiring remains to bring night softball to Escanaba. If any organization deserves a pat on the back for a good job well done, it is the softball association.

* * *

The association purchased its electric wire back in 1941 and was planning to present night softball to the Escanaba public in 1942. Then the Japs struck at Pearl Harbor and electric wire became an important war commodity. The City of Escanaba requested the softball association to loan its wire to the city and the association, always willing to cooperate, agreed. Shortly after, the WPB "froze" electric wire and the city was unable to repay its loan to the softball association. The result was that the lighted field for which the association had worked so diligently to achieve did not become a reality in 1942—nor in 1943 or 1944.

Now the City of Escanaba has ample stocks of electric wire, purchased from the federal government after the Escanaba ore dock fiasco, and the softball association is requesting return of its loan. There are still some technical questions involved that have to be solved, but the prospects are bright that the wire will be made available to the softball association shortly and that the lighted field will actually become a reality before the season is very old.

* * *

The softball association has carried on its program remarkably well under wartime conditions. A six-team league will be organized again this summer and several of the teams have been working out for the past few weeks. Scores of association members are in military service which, naturally, has crimped the league to some extent but the organization has kept the faith with those members by keeping interest alive and active in softball, even without the impetus that a lighted field would have given. The association is in sound financial condition and has purchased a number of war bonds. All this has been accomplished without making an admission charge to any of its nightly league games.

* * *

The new softball field is located just south of the fairgrounds, west of highway US2-41. It permits ample parking space, and the diamond, when completed, will be a source of pride to every softball player and every Escanaba sports fan. Anyone who has any authority to move heaven and earth and to cut red tape so that the association may get its electric wire now owes a moral obligation to the softball group to make their dream of a lighted field come true.

SIXTH WASHOUT HALTS BENGALS

Newhouser Selected To Twirl Today Against Jack Kramer

Detroit, May 4 (AP)—The weatherman put the damp finger on the Detroit Tigers again today, raining out the opener of their three-game series with the St. Louis Browns and forcing the Bengals to spend their sixth washout day of the young American League season in idleness.

Acting Manager Paul Richards named lefthander Hal Newhouser to twirl for Detroit Saturday against Jack Kramer of the Browns. Newhouser was slated to work today against Sig Jakucki.

Manager Luke Sewell of the Brownies thus had Jakucki and lefthander Al Hollingsworth to throw against Paul (Dizzy) Trout and probably Al Benton of the Tigers in Sunday's doubleheader.

Both Kramer and Jakucki whipped the Tigers three times in 1944. Jakucki beat Newhouser in an opening day struggle at St. Louis April 17 this year and Kramer was batted out of the box in short order in his first effort against the Tigers this season.

With the right combination of circumstances, the Tigers could leap ahead of the New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox into first place by beating the Brownies Saturday.

HUNTING AND FISHING
JULY RAINBOWS AT THE SOO

Every trout fisherman in Wisconsin and Michigan should fish the Soo rapids at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., before he puts his rod away for the last time. When the rainbows or steelhead are hitting there he'll get the thrill of his lifetime.

Almost a half century ago, when I was a lad, I ran the Soo rapids with Joe Roussea, an Indian. Joe had fought in the Civil war and showed me a lette written by Abraham Lincoln. President Lincoln commended him for his bravery.

The rapids were wider then than they are now, but that mile and a half stretch of rapids is still the sportiest piece of rainbow fishing in these United States, when the gates of the International bridge are open.

The American citizen fishes the American side, the Canadian fishes his side of the river between the two cities, the "Soo" of Michigan and the "Soo" of Canada. Both are listed on the maps as Sault Ste. Marie, but everyone calls the cities the Soo, for the French pronunciation of Sault is Soo.

When this war is over and there is no danger of the Soo locks being blown up, the rapids will be open to fishing once more. This stretch of deep, fast water which lies within the city limits of both cities will again be fished for rainbows and brook trout.

* * *

The St. Mary's river and Lake Superior were first reported to Europe through Etienne Brule who went around the lake in 1622 but never received the recognition he deserved in history. Some 275 years later fishing history was made in these waters.

* * *

The first steelhead or rainbows were planted in Lake Superior waters. Brought here from the west coast, these sporty fish have spread all over Lake Superior. Stocking every stream emptying into the lake and moving into the other lakes, Michigan and Huron, they have multiplied greatly.

Lack of space compels us to discuss the fishing of the Soo rapids in a following article wherein we shall point out the extremely interesting fishing to be had in this stretch of rapids.

* * *

I have fished many of the western rivers, including the famous Rogue river in Oregon, but there is no -such water any place be tween two cities in these United States. Nor is there more thrilling fishing than to have a great rainbow trout smash your tackle right there in the lights of the cities.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, May 4 (AP)—Profit cashing stalled a sharp rise in grain prices today and at the finish most of the futures list was within minor fractions of yesterday's closing quotations.

In most markets initial quotations were highs for the session. Wheat gained as much as 1 1/8 cents at the start and rye opened as much as 1 3/8 higher.

Shortly after the opening a private crop bulletin reported damage to wheat was not severe, that in most areas the plant was in "excellent condition," and that on the basis of May 1 estimates a yield of 849,659,000 bushels could be expected.

Corn was firm during the opening trade but dipped frequently under commission house pressure.

At the finish wheat was ¼ lower to ½ higher than yesterday's close, May $1.75. Corn was unchanged to up ¼, May $1.15. Oats were down 1/8 to 7/8, May 65 3/4. Rye was up ¼ to 5/8, May $1.36½-5/8. Barley was 3/8 to ½ higher, May 98 1/8.

INDUSTRY EXPANDING

Rio De Janeiro. (AP) — Recently cited statistics on Brazil's industrial growth reveal that in a quarter century the number of industrial establishments increased six times over. In 1920 Brazil had a total of 13,336 establishments compared with a present total of some 80,000. If the growth is counted from 1911, using that year's index as 100, today's index would be more than 4,000.

Rural Fires Destroy Four Buildings Friday; Five Are Damaged

LOSS INCLUDES 2 FARM HOMES

Barn, Warehouse Razed When High Winds Hit County

High winds that quickly whipped fires out of control yesterday destroyed two homes, a barn and a warehouse in the county, and damaged three other buildings with losses estimated in thousands of dollars.

Two buildings in Escanaba were damaged when fires started from burning paper blown by the wind.

The Hector LaChapelle home on the Flat Rock farm, owned by Earl Smith, was destroyed by fire about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The fire is believed to have started from chimney sparks. Some of the furniture was saved, but personal effects and much of the house furnishings were destroyed.

From the LaChapelle home the burning shingles were whipped off by the wind and ignited the barn, but the building was saved by conservation department fire fighters.

On the neighboring Frank Barron farm the burning embers rained down on a barn and pump house, but the flames were extinguished by a bucket brigade formed by neighbors. Eight or ten fires sprang up and one ember blew inside an open barn window to start a fire that also was put out before damage was done.

Johnson Home Razed

Still other flying embers started a number of grass fires surrounding the Andrew Rapette farm home, but they were put out without damage.

About 4 o'clock in the afternoon fire destroyed the Victor Johnson farm home on the Beaver road two miles west of Perkins. The fire was believed to have started from chimney sparks on the shingle roof. Only a part of the furnishings of the house was saved. Conservation department men and equipment aided in unsuccessful efforts to bring the fire under control.

At Perkins earlier in the afternoon fire starting in a storage building at the rear of the Jerry DePuydt filling station and garage on M-35 completely destroyed the building and threatened other buildings in the vicinity. Used auto tires and empty anti-freeze barrels were stored in the warehouse.

The Gladstone fire department was called and a pumper and skeleton crew of men were sent to Perkins to aid in fighting the blaze.

Flying embers set fire to the interior of the DePuydt home, but caused only minor damage.

Sparks blowing across the street through an open window of the Jim Loobey tavern also started a fire that was extinguished with only slight damage.

Haybarn Destroyed

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon fire started by a brooder stove destroyed the haybarn at the Joseph Butryn farm in Bark River. The building, 40 by 60 feet in size, was empty. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

In Escanaba yesterday afternoon burning paper blown by the wind started two fires that damaged two buildings in the 100 block, North Tenth street. The first fire was at 3:30 o'clock in an elevator shaft at the rear of 111 North Tenth street. The second fire occurred 25 minutes later when burning paper set fire to a sidewall of the Alex Shoe Shop across the street. The wall of the frame building was damaged.

The series of fires brought from conservation officers and city firemen a warning for caution in setting grass, rubbish or other fires in windy weather. In Escanaba Fire Chief Arvid Johnson said that paper must be burned in an incinerator.

RED CROSS APPEAL

The Delta county Chapter, American Red Cross, yesterday evening appealed for clothing, furniture and bedding to replace articles destroyed in one of the home fires in the county.

Under and outer clothing for eight children, four boys, ages 13, 8, 6 and 5; and four girls ages 10, 4, 14 months and one month old is needed immediately.

Contributions of clothing and bedding may be delivered to the Red Cross office in Escanaba, or they will be collected by telephoning No. 97.

With the 36th "Texas" Division, France, March 2—Today Tec. 4th Gr. George DePuydt, Rock, Michigan, passed his two hundredth consecutive day of combat as a member of the crack, veteran 753 Tank Battalion, having seen action in Sicily, Italy and France, and participated in the invasions at Gaela, Salerno, and the Riviera.

The 753rd played an active part in the rapid, sweeping success of the Sicilian liberation as the only independent medium tank battalion to participate in the campaign.

It made its second invasion on the beaches of "Bloody Salerno" as one of the first American tank units to land on the European mainland. It served with the 36th "Texas" Division and other units through the bloody, fierce winter campaign around San Pietro and Cassino under conditions which have been described as the 'worst in which American soldiers have ever battled." For its participation in the May 11 breakthrough at the Garigliano River, the 753rd was awarded the Croix de Guerre with Vermillion Star, the highest honor bestowed by the French Expeditionary Corps on any American unit. It then rejoined the American forces on the embattled Anzio beachhead and drove out in the action which opened the road to Rome. The 753rd then went on to play an important role in the lightening two hundred mile advance that freed the entire central sector of the Italian Peninsula, liberated Rome, and drove to the heights overlooking Piombino.

In its third major amphibious operation, the 753rd once more linked forces with the 36th Division to land on the Riviera coast. It was one of the elements of the task force which slashed over two hundred miles through the Sisteron gap to flank the German Nineteenth Army and bottle it up at Montelimar until the entire weight of the Seventh Army sprang the trap virtually to annihilate the Germans. It was the 753rd which then led the chase all the way to the enemy Moselle River line and lead the Seventh Army to the Vosges Mountains. It was the 753rd which participated in the drive through the Sainte Marie Pass, the first time in history such a feat had ever been accomplished. In the subsequent battles of the "Alsatian plain, when the German X Panser threatened to spew forward and overrun the Strasbourg defenses, the 753rd played an important part in driving the enemy bridgehead back across the Rhine.

Tec. 4th Gr. George DePuydt holds the Purple Heart with one Oak Leaf Cluster. His mother Mrs. Elizabeth DePuydt lives at RFD, Box 153, Rock, Michigan.

A Clothes Call You Might Say

Chicago. (AP) — The two-pants suit has a confirmed champion in Fred Rolla. When two gunmen held up a tavern recently, they emptied the cash register and the proprietor's pockets but found nothing while frisking Rolla. He had on two pairs of trousers. His money was in the inner pair.

TIRE SITUATION GROWING ACUTE

Quota Again Reduced For May; Gas Rationing Change Outlined

The passenger tire situation is more critical now than at anytime this year, the local war price and rationing board reported yesterday, and cited declining tire quotas for the county since the first of the year in support of that contention.

James E. Anderson, chief clerk, declared that the quota allocated for passenger car tires in Delta county was 350 in January, with a downward allocation each month thereafter. The quota was 270 in February, 250 in March, 146 in April, with a later adjustment of 17 additional tires, and only 145 in May.

"For the 145 tires that we are permitted to allocate, we have on hand 297 approved applications," Anderson said.

The available supply of certificates, based upon the allocated quota, will be issued to holders of the highest priorities. In general group one and group two priorities will exhaust the quota, it was indicated.

The ration board emphasized that the establishment of the new semi-preferred classification for gasoline rations actually will serve to reduce the amount of gasoline allowed for some applicants, by reducing them from the preferred status to semi-preferred, for which a maximum of 825 miles per month is permitted. Only a very few applicants will be increased from the 475 mile maximum permitted by B rations to the new semi-preferred status, it was indicated.

The local board indicated that contrary to popular belief the new 825 mile classification will not apply to salesman, except in cases where salesman can rove that they serve as technical advisors to essential industries. In general, less than 25 persons in the county will be affected by this revision, it was reported.

Mrs. Joseph Marrier Dies In Minneapolis Funeral Here Monday

Mrs. Gertrude Marrier died at 11:30 o'clock Tuesday night at her home in Minneapolis, where she had resided for the past eleven years.

She is survived by her husband Joseph; a son, Chester Marrier, of Escanaba; five grandchildren; and the following brothers and sisters, Mrs. Napoleon Lachapelle and Walter Hubert, Escanaba; Edward Hubert, Gladstone; Mrs. Joe Chevalier, Montreal, Canada; Arthur Hubert, Menominee; Mrs. Edward O'Donnell, Portland, Ore.; and Mrs. Queen Zimmel, Chicago.

Mrs. Marrier was born in Menominee on July 5, 1895.

The body will arrive in scanaba this morning and will be removed to the Boyce Funeral home where it will lie in state in the reposing room of the chapel beginning at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Mrs. Heslip Gets Information From Husband's Buddy

Mrs. Gerald Heslip, of Escanaba, has received an interesting letter from S/Sgt. Jack G. Henderson, of Texas, a buddy of her husband, Pvt. Gerald Heslip, who was captured in Holland Oct. 29 by the Germans.

Sgt. Henderson's letter revealed the circumstances under which Pvt. Heslip was wounded and taken prisoner last October. Excerpts follow:

"Your husband, Gerald Heslip, whom we all called Shorty, was my closest buddy. We fought together and dug our foxholes together. In the latter part of October we lost Shorty while fighting in Holland. We had been cut off by the Germans and only a few of our men got out. Shorty was wounded. Of that I am certain. Later we were separated and I have not seen him since. Possibly he was captured by the Germans and given medical treatment. Let me know, if you will, if you have any information regarding him.

"He had great courage and good judgment and he was one of the most dependable men in our outfit, although he was 36 years old and small in body. I'm sure he would be a staff sergeant by now if he was still with us."

Pvt. Heslip was held by the Germans at Stalag 2-A in Newbrandenburg, Germany. That area was overrun by the Russians this week and presumably Pvt. Heslip was liberated, although no word has been heard from him yet.

LESS IRON ORE TO BE SHIPPED

Escanaba Docks Probably Will Have Million Ton Decrease

Closing of the Penn mine at Vulcan this summer, routing of increased tonnage from the Marquette range via Lake Superior and decreased production at a number of Upper Peninsula properties are expected to reduce the volume of iron ore handled at the docks in Escanaba by about one million tons in 1945.

At the present time, however, receipts at the Escanaba docks are ahead of last year by about 30,000 tons. To date, about 800,000 tons has been loaded into boats here, but the movement is expected to slacken toward the close of the season.

Heavy wartime shipping of iron ore was recorded at scanaba in 1942 and 1943, when 6,255,360 and 6,330,565 tons were loaded into boats going to lower lake ports. Last year, 5,778,000 tons were handled here.

Harold Richards, superintendent of the Penn Mining company, stated yesterday that shipping from Vulcan was expected to cease sometime in August, marking the end of 70 years of operations during which period 21 ½ million tons of ore have been produced. This season's shipments from the Penn will approximate 525,000 tons, as compared with 629,800 in 1944.

In order to cut down on the vessel haul, the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company routed a greater amount of ore from the Marquette range through Escanaba instead of the port of Marquette. Marquette range shipments through Escanaba have averaged about million tons annually the last few years, but the figure will probably be less than half this season with the resumption of the Lake Superior movement.

Another development that will have adverse effect upon Escanaba's ore business is the suspension of operations at the Pickands-Mather company's Bengal mine at Iron River, which last year shipped 282,000 tons. These losses are only slightly offset by the opening of the CCI's new Mather mine at Ishpeming, which is now shipping a small amount of ore here for mixing with the Cliffs Group mixture.

CHINESE VISIT MINES

Ironwood—Two representatives of the Chinese government were on the Gogebic range yesterday, visiting various mining properties. They were Dr. Li and Dr. Cheng, geologists and mining engineers and members of the technical committee of the national resources commission of the Chinese government.

The visitors came here from Duluth and from Ironwood will go to other Michigan iron ranges to view mining operations.

Alger Beaver Are Safe And Plentiful

Shingleton — Beaver trapping wasn't allowed in Alger county but the animals were present in the county in rather bothersome numbers.

Small streams in this area have been dammed by the beaver and some of the dams have had to be removed to keep water off the highways.

Near Shingleton, beaver cut down great numbers of fair sized poplar trees over area extending several yards from the small creek which they later dammed.

Many trout streams in Alger and Schoolcraft counties have beaver ponds. Trappers from this area report that otter are fairly numerous in the beaver country.
